

A Partial Transcription of the St. Brigid's parish register, Parrsboro, Nova Scotia

Transcribed by Jim McGrath (in a fit of boredom) from FHL film #0872003

This file contains most of the extant records from the 1850's and 1860's.

Items in (parentheses) are usually marginalia – corrections or additions made later. These may be as simple as the priest forgetting to note the place of baptism, and inserting it with a caret (^), or in some cases provide additional information added years after the fact (for example adding a marriage note to a baptism, as in James Robert McGrath's record 4 Oct 1867.)

Items in [brackets] are my own text. Usually explanatory notes, or in a few cases information extrapolated from the original context which might not be clear in this transcription.

Items in {curly brackets} are uncertain transcriptions. As with any hand-written document of this age, and as with any microfilm recording, words and sometimes whole passages are illegible. In most cases I have at least hazarded a guess. Please note that just because I have not {bracketed} something does not guarantee the accuracy of is transcription. The entire document might as well be {bracketed,} really. Caveat emptor.

The long series of + marks indicate new pages.

“P.P.” is an abbreviation following the name of a parish priest – NOT initials.

Common problems: it's hard to tell the difference between MacKay and Mackay, Mahony and Mahany, and Ryan and Regan.
